

Tangible Net Benefit Worksheet

Pursuant to the Georgia Fair Lending Act no creditor may engage in the unfair act or practice of flipping a home loan. Flipping may occur when a creditor refinances an existing home loan that was consummated within the prior five years when the new loan does not provide a reasonable, tangible net benefit to the borrower considering all of the circumstances, including the terms of both the new and refinanced loans, the cost of the new loan, and the borrower's circumstances. In addition, the home loan financing transaction could be presumed to be a flipping where a home loan refinances an existing home loan that was consummated within the prior five years and that is a special mortgage originated, subsidized, or guaranteed by or through a state, tribal, non profit organization or local government which either bears a below-market interest rate at the time the loan was originated or has nonstandard payment terms beneficial to the borrower, such as payments that vary with income, are limited to a percentage of income or where no payments are required under specified conditions and where, as a result of the refinancing, the borrower will lose one or more of the benefits of the special mortgage.
